

Confidence in the Canadian Criminal Justice System 2022

Key findings from the 2022 National Justice Survey

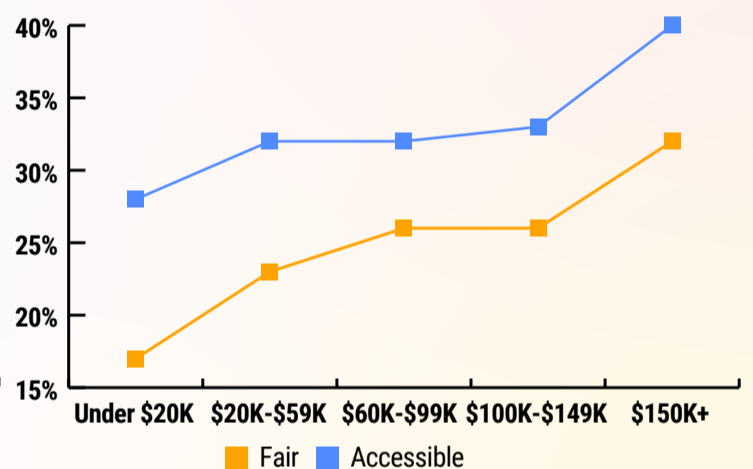

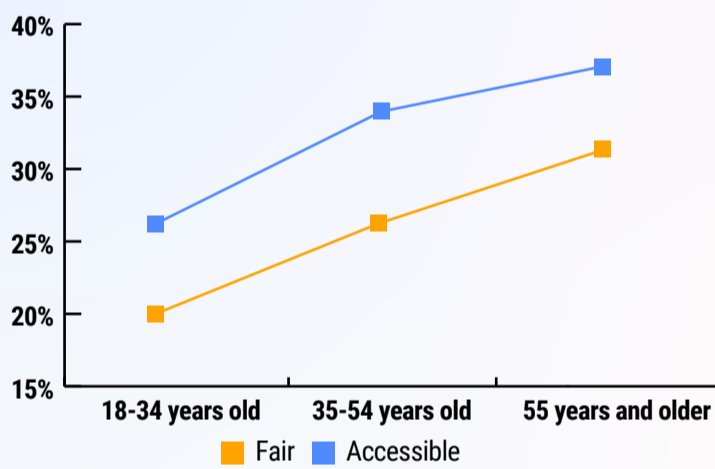

The percentage of Canadians who are confident in the criminal justice system (CJS) increased between 2021 and 2022.^{1,2}

Men are more likely to report being confident in the CJS than women

Confidence generally increases with age and income

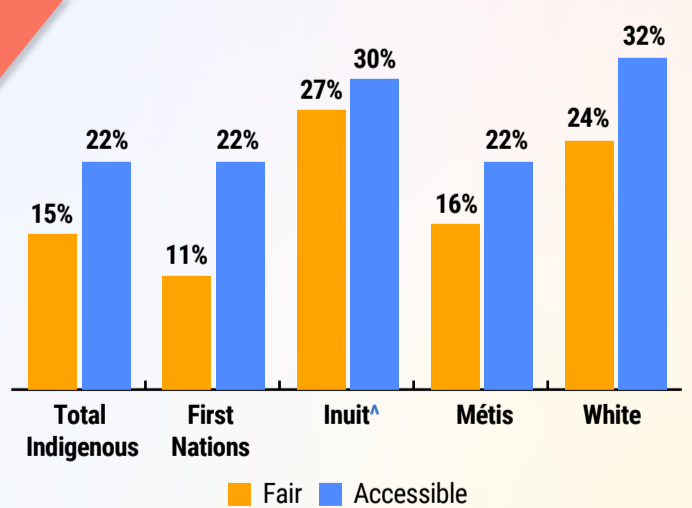

The proportion of Canadians who report being confident in the CJS differs by ethno-cultural identity

People born outside of Canada are more likely to report being confident in the CJS than people born in Canada

Indigenous people report lower confidence in the CJS than White people

^aCaution: small sample size (<=50).

Notes

- Questions on confidence in the CJS were asked on a scale of 1 to 5 where 1 is "not at all confident" and 5 is "very confident." In this infographic, the term "confidence" refers to a rating of 4 or 5 on a 5 point scale.
- Bars in graphs do not add to 100% ("Don't know" responses are included in analysis but are not displayed)
- Total Racialized Groups includes Black, East Asian, Latino/Latina/Latinx, Middle Eastern, North African, South Asian, Southeast Asian.

Source: 2022 National Justice Survey <https://www.justice.gc.ca/eng/rp-pr/jr/NJS-SNJ.html>